This landmark in the historic town of Madison, Georgia, is a "gem of the Antebellum Trail." Combining the splendor and charm of the pre-war South with modern comfort, James Madison has been designed to complement the architecture of the town and comprises 17 luxury guest rooms and 2 suites. Each room has been named after one of Madison's historic houses and features a painting of its namesake above the mantle of the fireplace. The in-room library, filled with works by local authors and artists, furthers the sense of local pride apparent in this elegant hotel. Rooms are individually appointed with custom-designed furniture, 600 thread-count linens on sumptuous king-sized beds, soft-lighting and neutral hues. They also include a furnished porch, flat-screen television, wireless Internet and an oversized walk-in black and white tile shower in every bathroom.
